

Food Safety officials raid restaurant

STAFF REPORTER

VIJAYAWADA, JULY 18, 2018 00:00 IST

Collect samples of some dishes

Officials of Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) conducted raids on Alfa Restaurant in the city and collected samples of some dishes.

They served notices on the restaurant management on poor hygienic conditions and for preserving meat for a long period.

The team led by Assistant Food Controller N. Purnachandra Rao conducted surprise checks on Tuesday, on the restaurant located in the city and other branch, being run by the same management.

They found chicken, mutton and other items preserved in the refrigerators in the restaurant.

“We collected samples of Chicken Tanduri and Chicken Biryani, which would be sent for testing,” said Mr. Purnachandra Rao.

Food Inspector G. Venkateswara Rao said that there was no food licence for the restaurant. The case is under investigation, Mr. Rao said.